Subject: Willamette River, Oregon

I'm a fourth generation Oregonian and thru the years have experienced Willamette River's pollution, the partial clean up, and again the disappearance of its clean water by minimalist legislation and work by EPA.

It's very difficult to support business, workers, demand, and stay strong to ethics of respecting all life enough to block/stop, production of products that can not keep our environment healthy.

A most important part of growing a profitable business is moral responsibility to include a waste disposal plan that does not harm people nor animals. If we can make something that can't be done with environmental safety, we must not manufacture the product.

Please re-analyze the present proposals and create a more strict adherence to environmental concerns!
